

Chester Square

Truly great, and truly British. The nations most desirable street.

➤ Holding the caché of being the most desirable street in the country, (with an average house value in excess of £6 million) Chester Square is one of the three squares designed by Thomas Cubitt for the Grosvenor family. Named after the northern city where Grosvenor's Eaton Hall is situated, Chester Square was originally laid out as streets, but was later redesigned as a square, with designs by Thomas Cundy and Seth Smith. Building began in around 1832, with most houses completed by the 1840s.

The picturesque Gothic church St Martin was built in 1844 to the designs of Cundy, and decorated in designs of 14th century. Originally it had a lofty spire which appeared out of proportion with the building until additions were made to the body of the building in 1874 to correct this aesthetic imbalance.

Famous residents of the square include Margaret Thatcher, Queen Wilhemina of the Netherlands, Frankenstein author Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, poet Matthew Arnold, Mick Jagger and Nigella Lawson.
