

Doll's house hunting

An Easter egg hunt with chocolate prizes is being held at Ayrton Wylie until April 19.

A giant doll's house in the estate agent's window has caused something of a sensation on Lower Belgrave Street recently, with its décor changing to celebrate Christmas and then Chinese New Year.

Now the house has an Easter theme, and children are invited to see how many golden eggs they can spot hidden in the house and garden. They can then pop into the office with their guess – and if they are correct, win a chocolate treat.

Asked if the competition was for children only, a spokesman said tactfully: "It's aimed at children, although of course open to all. Adults may have to be a little better with their spotting to get a chocolate reward."

Ayrton Wylie is at 16 Lower Belgrave Street.
